REASONS FOR USING HORSFORD'S BREAD PREPARATION.

First.—IT IS HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS. It contains within itself the highly nutritious and strength-giving phosphates which are required by the system, the same that are found in meat, fish, corn, and wheat. Ordinary baking-powders, cream tartar, yeast, &c., do not contain nutritive qualities, but are in many cases very injurious compounds.

Second.—IT WILL NOT DETERIORATE or lose strength by age. The peculiar manner of packing prevents any loss of strength after the package is open. All ordinary baking-powders lose strength after being opened.

Third.—IT IS PURE. The characteristic form of package obviates the necessity of reducing the strength by the addition of starch or flour, in order to make it keep, as is customary in the manufacture of ordinary baking-powder.

Fourth.—IT IS RELIABLE and does not vary in quality. The high standing and character of the inventor (Professor E. N. Horsford, of Cambridge), and the reputation of the manufacturers (the Rumford Chemical Works, of Providence, R. I.) is a guarantee that the goods will always be of uniform quality and as represented.

Fifth.—IT IS ECONOMICAL, as it is 75 per cent. stronger than the common baking-powders and 30 per cent. stronger than the best baking-powder made.

Sixth.—IT REQUIRES LESS SHORTENING, and is better than all other baking-powders. The bread, biscuit, &c., made with it are moist and palatable when cold.

Admiral Baldwin Mad.

HOW HE WAS TREATED BY THE AMERICAN MINISTER TO RUSSIA.

Minister Hunt, the representative of the United States at the Court of the Czar, has become entangled in a difficulty with Admiral Baldwin, who was sent to Russia as a naval ambassador bearing tidings of good-will to the Russian monarch. A Washington telegram says: In an official report concerning his visit and the coronation ceremonies the Admiral speaks in the highest terms of the treatment received by himself and staff from Russian officials, but stress is laid upon his failure to obtain an invitation to the church in which the ceremony took place. The United States Minister is held responsible for the oversight, because, as Admiral Baldwin states, the former mixed up the naval ambassador post-mill with the civilian attaché of the embassy, and the Court Chamberlain was particularly only to send cards to persons bearing the name of Hunt. All of the members of the Minister's family were present at the coronation, but the Admiral and his party were left out in the cold among the Russian rabble. The slight was keenly felt, but no attention was paid to the matter till the Admiral declined to attend the State ball the evening of the coronation. The cause of his declination was promptly given and resulted in a visit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Emperor's personal aid, both of whom were profuse in apologies. Finally the Admiral, who was on his way to his vessel with his officers, was induced to reconsider his determination and attend the ball. Here the party met with marked consideration at the hands of the Czar. At subsequent receptions every effort was made to recompense the Americans for their disappointment. The Admiral, however, in his communication expresses the opinion that Minister Hunt was too intent upon fixing his family and friends, among the latter being Bonanza Mackay and wife, to attend to the naval ambassador and escort.

Accompanying the communication is a printed list of the diplomatic representatives entitled to be present at the coronation ceremonies, in which the United States contingent is arranged as follows: Minister Hunt, wife, daughter, and son; Admiral and Mrs. Baldwin, First Secretary Warts, Captain Bancroft, Lieutenants Rodgers and Paul, John W. Mackay and wife, and Mr. Chandler, secretary to Admiral Baldwin. The communication is dated Stockholm, Sweden, June 22, 1883, aboard the United States flagship Lancaster.

Wednesday Night's Great Meteor.

A meteor of extraordinary size was seen in Boston to pass across the northern sky in a general direction from west to east about 11:45 o'clock Wednesday night. Advertiser says it appeared at first considerably larger than one of the street electric lights, and its brightness was as intense. It moved with stately grandeur, apparently as if floating in air current, so slow and steady was its progress. Its motion might well be compared with that of a large fire-balloon. As it passed along its course its shape changed from a sphere to an elongated form, and it gradually diminished in size till it vanished from sight.

A Quebec telegram of the 12th says a brilliant meteor of immense size was seen to fall slowly over the southwestern sky soon after midnight last night, leaving behind it a train of bluish fire.
The Portland Argus says: A meteor of uncommon brilliancy passed over the city last night, moving with great rapidity. It was seen by several members of the police force. Officer Rowe, on the hill beat, first noticed it. Then Officer Greely saw the strange visitor, and finally Officers Merrill and Harris saw it as it came to rest. It was seen by Mr. Harris, who was on Commercial street, just above the oil-works, that the meteor seemed to him about as large as a man's head and resembling "a wandering electric light." The base of the ball was perfectly white, giving out a very strong light, equal in its limited sphere to sunlight. The light tapered down until it was a line of brightness of a pink color. Mr. Harris believes that when the meteor passed his post of observation it was not more than one hundred feet above the ground. The meteor was moving downward. About an hour before the passing of the meteor other parties noticed that the sky looked strangely, having very much the same appearance as it did last year when the comet was visible.

Brief News Items.

Joseph Steinhart, nineteen years old, shot his sixteen-year-old wife in the neck Thursday night while she and another girl were walking in Thirty-fourth street, New York, with two men. He then shot himself in the head. Neither of the wounds is believed to be serious. The young couple have been married one year. Steinhart was jealous.

J. B. Davis, a young man moving in good society at Little Rock, Ark., and who was to be married next week to a young lady, has been arrested as an escaped convict from the Mississippi penitentiary, where he has two years yet to serve. His real name is Julius De Laby, and his identity was accidentally discovered by a gentleman from Mississippi, who saw the fugitive at a picnic on the 4th of July.

A special dispatch from Carmel, Ill., says: At Burnt Prairie, twelve miles from here, a fatal affray occurred between Douglas Gowdy and his sister's husband, "Buck" Williams, the result of an old family feud. Gowdy went to Williams's residence, armed with a knife, and cut the latter several times. Williams ran, but was followed by Gowdy. He then drew his own knife and stabbed Gowdy to the heart, killing him instantly.

A Harvard graduate has written to the Boston Herald expressing, he says, the views of a large number of educated people about the work of our higher colleges. He speaks of the lack of enthusiasm at Harvard, and of any influence to act upon the undergraduates exciting a love of learning. The best facilities are provided for those who are studious and ambitious, but anything like enthusiasm among the half-dozen students who are considered "bad form."

IRISH ROYALTY IN EXILE.

Driven from Ireland and Finding Wealth in Colorado—The Romantic Career of Edward Meierle O'Brien, the Descendant of an Irish King—A Pleasant Home on the Plains.

Edward Meierle O'Brien, a lineal descendant of Brian Boru, the last king of Ireland, lives in Saginaw county, at least so says a correspondent of the Philadelphia Press. He is one of Colorado's earliest settlers, who came to the State during the gold excitement of 1859. Here he rules in the true baronial style, owning more acres and controlling more wealth than contemplated in the high-sounding titles of all his ancestry. The story of his life as told by him, is extremely entertaining.

In 1848 the descendants in Ireland of old Brian Boru appeared conspicuously as members of the Young Ireland party, which had grown under the auspices of the "Conciliator." While the English Government swooped down upon the disorganized Irish rebellion was soon crushed. Among those captured were the Brians, of Munster, now modernized by the prefix and the addition of given names, which came in vogue with the reign of their royal ancestors. William Smith O'Brien, first sentenced to be hanged. Edward Meierle O'Brien and another brother escaped and fled to this country.

When they arrived here they separated. Edward was soon penniless. He could have found friends among his own people, but he preferred to remain unknown, as the Government at once had placed a price upon his head. He was a young man of good appearance, of more than ordinary intelligence, but could get no position befitting his training; and, in order to avert starvation, he went to boating on the Hudson. During the eleven years that preceded his appearance in these mountains his fortunes varied, until finally he appeared in Chicago as a drayman. It was about this time that the news of the discovery of gold in the Rockies was agitating the country.

He then gathered together what little he possessed, which amounted to $200, he started westward in company with two others as adventurous and poverty-stricken as himself. The Cheyennes, Arapahoes, and Comanches were then in undisputed possession of the plains. Massacres were frequent, and a journey over so widely traveled a country as the Santa Fe trail was beset with danger. Joining a train of twelve schooners they accomplished their perilous undertaking, arriving at Santa Fe in the best of spirits.

With their horses passed on to the Rio Grande, and following that river, were soon in the Ute country, where from Chief Ouray they learned that the gold-bearing gulches were further on in the country of the Ute country. Accompanied by a Southerner, they reached the mouth of a passport of safety, they reached the north fork of the Gunnison. Thence they crossed the Elk mountains and began excavating among the gulches of what is now Pitkin county. Fortune favored them, and they soon located some valuable placer-mines.

In a few years O'Brien returned to the Southern Ute country, where he had made friends with the natives. He had amassed wealth, and was now disposed to live leisurely. He had given up all thoughts of returning to Ireland, and when Ouray suggested that he should take up the tract of country near him he readily consented, realizing at once the advantage to be gained by the old Chief's friendship. Stock-raising was then unknown in this region, and in Texas and in its vicinity. The Ute country was then in its infancy. He had a large herd of cattle, and he had a large herd of horses. He had a large herd of cattle, and he had a large herd of horses.

His library is the library of a littérateur, and it is here that he spends his declining days. Stagnant fill the niches, and the walls are covered with the paintings and engravings, and the bric-a-brac usually to be found in the home of a literary recluse is here seen in profusion. On the desk before him are the works of Disraeli, of Byron, of Shakespeare, and of the great poets of the world. He has a large collection of books, and he has a large collection of books.

O'Brien was East a number of years ago. It was while making this trip that he stopped in Georgia, and, as a lineal descendant of the Kings of Munster, was entertained royally by the Georgia Legislature. He was given a large sum of money, and he was given a large sum of money.

"Do I expect to return to Europe? No! I am an American citizen, and I shall remain. The only reason I could remain here is that I have no other home. I have no other home."

A Kansas Family Drowned in a Well. (Elkhorn Reporter.)
L. J. Cooley of Venango, called last Monday and informed us that Mr. John Bloomquist, his wife and son, were all found dead in a shallow well on their farm in McPherson county, near the Elkhorn. The man was found in the well, and the woman and child were found in the well. The man was found in the well, and the woman and child were found in the well.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Briefs and Personals.
The Bloody-Run spring, with three or four acres of land surrounding it, is now in the market. It was the only "water-works" Richmond had for many years. It was piped and conveyed as far up as Fifteenth street. Afterward, for a long time, the gas-works received its water supply from this source. It discharges 50,000 gallons per day.

Mr. Elam has returned to Louisa, and Dr. Lewis Wheat, his surgeon, to this city. The committee of tobaccoists who, with the Hon. George D. Wise, went to Washington to persuade the President to annul the order consolidating this revenue district with the Petersburg district, have returned. They received no encouragement. They were pleasantly received by Mr. Arthur, but he did not conceal the fact that he had been worried by such applications, coming as they did from every State and nearly every district.

The infant daughter of Rev. Dr. William E. Hatcher died at New Market, Nelson county, yesterday morning. The management of the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company, in the interest of those who own and are operating mineral properties and mining enterprises, has determined to make an exhibit of the minerals of the region of country traversed by its lines of railroads at the great Exposition which takes place August 1st at Denver, Col.

Mr. Peter K. Morgan, Sr., who is now in his ninety-seventh year and in good health, is believed to be the oldest citizen of Richmond. He served in the war of 1812. Bricklayers here are in good demand, and are getting from $3 to $4 per day. In testimony before the Police Court yesterday morning Dr. Crutchfield's physician stated that his patient was very precarious and uncertain, and that it was hard to tell what the final result would be. Last night, however, the Doctor was still holding his own, and his friends are hopeful.

Another rain yesterday evening cooled the atmosphere considerably. The Hustings Court was engaged yesterday in the trial of civil cases. Judge Newman was too ill to hold court yesterday, and the case of Barbara Miller was further continued. Mr. John McFarland was still exceedingly ill last night. Judge Hughes will be here Monday. The Richmond election cases are fixed for Tuesday. Jurors and witnesses have been summoned for that date. The District Attorney expects to go right on with the cases.

Mr. R. A. Coghill, of Amherst, who is in delicate health, was in the city yesterday consulting Dr. Maguire. Major John W. Daniel was in the city yesterday for a few days. The brick tenement on the north side of Main between Ninth and Tenth streets, occupied by Mr. C. F. Johnston and others, was sold at auction yesterday by Messrs. W. Goddin & Son, and brought $12,150.

George McGovern, charged with unlawfully keeping a gambling-house. Continued to Tuesday next, and bail allowed in the sum of $300.

Alexander Black, unlawful assault. Discharged.
J. S. Tower, contempt of court. Excused.
Thomas Lovine, on an attachment, was brought into court and fined $2 and costs for creating a disturbance.

Major Norton's Funeral.

The funeral of Major George F. Norton took place yesterday afternoon from St. James church, to which place and to the cemetery the remains were escorted by the First Regiment and the Old First Association. The religious services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Peterkin, assisted by Rev. Mr. Armstrong. Mr. Norton presided at the organ, and Mr. Cunningham sang a solo. The services and vocal and instrumental music were very sweet. A large congregation of the military testified the respect in which the community held the long residence. The burial was at Hollywood. There, beneath the shades, with A. P. Hill, Pickett, Stuart, and 12,000 other Confederates, the gallant Major sleeps.

The National Cotton Exchange.

This body of representative men from the various cotton-producing and selling points of the country will meet at Old Point, Va., on the 18th inst. The delegates from New Orleans, numbering twenty-five, will leave that city on Sunday, coming through without change via Louisville over the Chesapeake and Ohio railway. Ten delegates from the St. Louis Cotton Exchange and about thirty from Tennessee will also attend the meeting at the Richmond and the Virginia. This is the first of the series of games between these clubs, dates of which are to be arranged and announced hereafter.

Base-Ball Matches This Afternoon.

There will be a game of base-ball this afternoon at the Virginia Base-Ball Park between the Richmond and the Virginia. This is the first of the series of games between these clubs, dates of which are to be arranged and announced hereafter.

The Game of Poker.

The city amateur was called to St. James street yesterday by a knockdown by a poker-wielder by Mary Anderson. Both are colored. Catherine was taken to the almshouse. Her injury is not believed to be very severe. Mary was arrested and carried to the Third station-house, and will be brought before the Police Court this morning.

Submitted for Probate.—The will of Mr. Louis P. Samanni, son of Thomas Samanni, Esq., deceased, was offered for probate yesterday in the Probate Court. The elder Mr. Samanni died during the war, leaving his property to his widow, during her life, and at her death to be divided among his children. His son, Louis P., died in 1865, leaving a will which remained unrecorded until now, the mother having but recently died. One clause of the will bequeathed to St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum in this city.

Ball Refused.

Yesterday morning when the case of L. F. Mason, charged with feloniously wounding and stabbing Dr. William E. Crutchfield was called in the Police Court counsel for Mason applied for bail for John B. Young and Major A. R. Courtney acted as Mason's counsel, and the principal ground upon which the plea for bail was based was that the charge against Mason under which he now stands committed is felonious cutting, in which Mason can testify and give under oath his statement of the affair; whereas if the injuries of Dr. Crutchfield should unfortunately terminate fatally, the Commonwealth would have held Mason in custody under a charge in which he could testify until in a subsequent prosecution for the killing of Dr. Crutchfield only the statement of Dr. Crutchfield could be heard, while Mason's voice would be silenced forever; that no harm could occur by hearing the case for bail now, as nothing else would be decided, and the prosecution could afterwards be changed if the result to Dr. Crutchfield should require it. They relied on the express language of the statute giving the right to bail either pending the examination of upon a commitment for trial.

Mr. Witt, the Commonwealth's attorney, opposed going into an examination in reference to the question of bail, in the absence of Dr. Crutchfield, one of the principals in the affair, and closed by saying if the counsel for the accused could show any law in support of their motion he would like for them to produce it. Colonel Young cited law from the Criminal Code, but the Court overruled the motion, and Mason was recommitted to jail.

Ireland's Sorry Troubles.

It is almost impossible not to sympathize with Ireland in her troubles—almost as impossible as not to sympathize with a human body tortured by disease and racked by pain. Ireland needs heroic treatment. So does the body struggling for freedom. When a great leader arises, Ireland's woes may end. The great leader that expels pain from the body and casts out the devils of disease is Perry Davis's Pain-Killer. Nothing like it for summer diseases. Keep a bottle in the house. Never travel without one in your satchel. Then you always have a doctor around.

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

J. C. Gray, of Duval, Ala., writes us: "I have been using your DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALM FOR THE LUNGS, and I can say of a truth it is far superior to any other lung preparation in the world. My mother was confined to her bed four weeks with a cough, and had every attention by as good physicians as there are in the country, and they all failed to effect a cure; but when I put one bottle of your DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALM FOR THE LUNGS she began to mend right away, I can say in truth that it WAS THE MEANS OF SAVING HER LIFE. I know of five cases that Dr. William Hall's Balm has cured, and my mother is better now than she has been before for twenty years."
